

“The Generous Lives of True Believers”

Acts 2; 2 Corinthians 9

The book of Acts tells us about the very first Christian believers. Their daily lives were simple; their spiritual lives were vibrant. Far from being independent isolationists who only met once a week, they lived their lives together. They were generous people who sought to meet one another's needs and make an impact in the world by giving their time, talent, and treasure to make sure the message about Jesus went far and wide.

I. They Are Open-Hearted with Their Time (vv. 44, 46)

II. They Are Open-Minded with Their Talent (vv. 42, 44b, 47)

III. They Are Open-Handed with Their Treasure (v. 45)
